Peruse a Peruvian menu in Lima, dine in bed in New York or plump for sumptuous simplicity in Tel Aviv

SHEET DREAMS*BED, NEW YORK

Oliver Hoyos is taking the concept of his lounge Miami restaurant BED to New York. Ride the freight elevator to the sixth floor, 1,400 sq m loft, and take your pick from the 23 'beds' atop zebra-wood platforms in the dining room or head for the prime spots on the roof garden. Robert McKeown
BED, 530 West 27th Street, 6th floor, New York, tel: 1.212 594410

MESSA IS MORE*MESSA, TEL AVIV

Alex Meitlis's sumptuous white-on-white Levantine eatery has long walnut tables anchoring the dining room, which is floored in creamy Turkish marble and lined with billowing curtains that hide bed-like banquettes. The bar is more moody, with inky marble floors setting a sotto voce vibe. David Kaufman

ALL THE BEIGE*BEIGE, TOKYO

Atop the Chanel building in Ginza, and named after Coco's favourite hue, this French restaurant is backed by Karl Lagerfeld, catered by Alain Ducasse and designed by Peter Marino. Ducasse's menu mixes foie gras and lobster with wagyu beef and Nemuro scallops. Marie Le Fort

DINING EXTRA

Vietnamese restaurant Sapa, tel: 1.212 929 1800, is the new darling of New York's Asian dining scene. Cocoon, tel: 44.20 7494 7600, on London's Regent Street, is proving a hit with the city's fashion pack, thanks to its well-designed Asian lunch-box menu and Stephane Dupoux's funky interiors. PLAT DU JORDIRODRIGO, LIMA

Having spiced up Lima's nightlife with fashionable hot spots Soga Room and Lava Lounge, Peruvian architect Jordi Puig has now opened a restaurant in the city. The décor is distinctly male, with tweed upholstery and a glowing alabaster panel behind the bar. Chef Rodrigo Conroy, who cut his teeth at Paris's Hôtel le Bristol, has created a fusion-filled menu with solid Peruvian roots, offering dishes such as shrimp sautéed in vanilla oil with corn cream ravioli.
